Shadow Art

for great bass recorder, voice & real-time electronics

duration ca. 9'

2017

Première: Zeughaus Kultur Brig-Glis, 19 November, 2017 by Ums'n'Jip

Texts:

Jack Spicer, "Any fool can get into an ocean..." (1949); used with permission from Wesleyan University Press

Heinrich von Kleist, Über die allmähliche Verfertigung der Gedanken beim Reden ['On the gradual development of thoughts in speech'] (1805-6)

Petrarch, Que' ch'infinita providentia et arte ['What infinite providence and art'] from Il Canzoniere (1327-68)

Performance notes:

For the realisation of this piece, the following materials are necessary:

- three microphones:
 - one placed in front of LEFT speaker
 - one for vocalist
 - a capsule microphone, attached near the labium of the recorder
- an audio interface with at least three inputs and two outputs
- two video monitors for time-code display
- the performance patch (available on request: paul@paulclift.net) & Max/MSP (or Max/MSP Runtime) V7.x
- a stereo pair of loud-speakers, arranged as shown (N.B. it is important that the speakers be positioned in front of the performer in order to minimise the risk of audio feedback):

Shadow Art

for voice, great-bass recorder & electronics for Ulrike and Javier, with much admiration.
